We would really like to hear from you guys

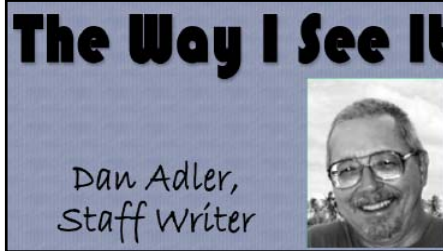

I've appreciated the opportunity to write commentaries. It gives me a chance to express my opinion about things and stuff. I'm especially thankful to be able to give my personal view on current affairs and world events.

But you know, every now and then, I get lazy. Or at least, I have trouble thinking of something to write about. There's been a lot of paper-going-to-press days and I'm still wondering what I can put on the page.

So, how about this? We at the Hourglass would like to see more community participation in the paper. We welcome letters to the editor and we'd love to see more commentaries by residents. All of you out there in Kwaj land have opinions and the Hourglass is a perfect place to express them. How about you teens? You've got opinions, don't you? You're welcome to write, too.

How about sharing some humorous stories with us? Everybody likes a good laugh.

We do have a few rules like no personal attacks on anybody and no scary insane rantings. Opinions should be backed up with facts or insightful reasons you feel the way you do about a particular subject.

An option, if you wouldn't like to write something yourselves, is that community members could send in ideas and subjects they would like humble me to write about and express my incredibly intelligent opinion on. Yes, I know, I'm too modest.

If you would like to do that or write your own commentary, send to e-mail address hourglass@kls.usaka.smdc.army.mil.

So there you have it. If you like to write, have an opinion (and who doesn't) about things, then by golly, send us a commentary. We may have to edit it for Associated Press style, but other than that, it will be as you wrote it. I hope you do. I've been working much too hard and I'm way behind on my nap time at the office.

And keep sending those letters to the editor, too. We love getting those (sometimes).

On a totally different subject, if you'd like to see award-winning acting (you'll need to use your imagination), come to the Living Last Supper Thursday night at the chapel. Myself and 12 other brave souls will attempt to portray Christ and the 12 apostles during their last supper before his death. In the presentation, Jesus has just said one of the apostles will betray him. Each apostle then gives a monologue describing his association with Jesus and how the apostle feels about a traitor being in their midst.

It's a pretty interesting and inspiring portrayal. There will also be music and communion following the presentation. So hey, if you've got nothing else to do at 7 p.m. on Thursday evening, come to the chapel and check it out. It's your big chance to see me act. Sorry, no heckling allowed.

See you there, I hope.

Husbands, children stranded, women go wild

By Suza Goltz,
YYWC president

This past weekend, the force of the Yokwe Yuk Women's Club struck the island at hurricane strength 5 as ladies across Kwajalein prepared for the on rush of 27 lovely ladies visiting from the Women's Clubs of Majuro.

The Weekend Cultural Exchange between women started off with a welcome lunch sponsored by the Jinetiptip Club. The Majuro gals were surprised with an afternoon of pampering as Renee Ray gave manicures and Carol Golby-Saunders massaged their stress away. Nearby, an art exhibition of watercolors from Cris Lindborg, batik from Denise Dorn-Spurlock and pottery from Sherry Olson kept the ladies culturally stimulated.

Sunset ushered in the customary Marshallese greeting ceremony consisting of speeches, songs, lots of laughter and kibitzing, followed by a formal presentation of gifts from the ladies of Majuro to Lerioj

Living on a rock

Quality of life top reason for residing, working on Kwajalein

By Nell M. Drumheller
Editor

Making the decision to remain on Kwajalein after an initial contract can depend on several factors.

On paper the low cost of living and federal exemption for the first $80,000 in annual income may appear to be key. But some Kwaj residents say it's more about quality of life.

Peter Barbella has been a mathematics teacher on Kwajalein for 17 years. He and his wife Trina Tiffany have raised two children on the island. They are moving back to the United States at the end of this school year after their daughter, Lisa, graduates from Kwajalein Senior High School.

"I grew up in the late-1950s and early-1960s. In those days, everyone seemed to know, socialize with and look out for their neighbors; even in the tenements of the Bronx," Barbella said of his childhood in New York City. He recalled, "Many kids of all ages were out and about playing in schoolyards at every opportunity. By the time I became a parent in the 1980s, I fervently wished that same sense of community for my two young children. But few, if any, places in America were like that anymore. Kwaj was. I did not just move to another place, I moved to another time. It was somewhat miraculous."

He described the Kwajalein community as the best part of living at this remote location. "There is a ready and comfortable social scene just outside your front door and, often enough, it comes through your front door (just as in my childhood). There is a whirlwind of activities, many carried out by volunteers that benefit the community, especially the young people here. Families have many opportunities to be together with other families. Trina and I have spent far more time with our children throughout their childhoods and into their teens than we would have been likely nearly anywhere else," he added.

"The parents here are as caring and competent and value education as much as any teacher can hope to find. Teachers here have a relationship with parents and it is very largely a positive one. My students and I reap the benefits every day school is in session," he said.

Though his life on Kwajalein has been rich, it is time to move on. He and Trina's reason for going back to the states is the same reason they came to Kwajalein years ago, family. "Over the next ten years or so, David [Barbella's 18 year-old son] and Lisa should be completing college, embarking upon their careers, perhaps meeting future spouses and starting families. Trina and I do not wish to be 5,000 miles away while all this is taking place," he said.

Barbella said the adjustment to living in the states after nearly two decades on Kwajalein will be a challenge. "Peace Corps volunteers have a pat answer when asked if they had a difficult time adjusting to life in a new culture, 'Yes, I did. But not as difficult as adjusting to living back in the States when I returned.'"

Club means fishing, stories, competition

By Elizabeth Davie
Reporter

A number of clubs and activities are offered on island. If you are looking for some fishing buddies, big-fish stories and a little bit of fun, the Kwajalein Atoll International Sportfishing Club could be for you.

The club originated in the mid-to-late 1980s and was, during that time, called the Kwajalein Power Boat Club, according to Trudy Butler, club secretary. Now, 20 or so years later the club has 119 members.

Members consist of residents from Kwajalein, Roi-Namur, Ebeye and Enniburr.

So why join the club? "Being a member of the sportsfishing club entitles anglers to participate in all KAISC sponsored events, which primarily consist of fishing tournaments,” Butler said. “Generally, the club sponsors two major tournaments each year and our ultimate goal is to also have several ‘fishing derbies’ each year, i.e. smaller scale fishing tournaments.”

There is more to the club than just fishing. Members may attend monthly meetings where club business, boating and fishing related activities are discussed. KAISC provides food and beverages, free of charge, at each monthly meeting.

Demonstrations are often provided to include lure-tying techniques, techniques for making fishing hand lines and rigs for live baiting, etc. “Members have the opportunity at each meeting to share their latest fishing and boating tales with other club members,” Butler said.

KAISC offers an outlet for members to share their fishing adventures with the world at www.kaisc.com.

“KAISC and its members also actively support various fundraising activities taking place throughout the community.

For example, Kwajalein anglers participating in the Big Strike fishing tournament donated fish caught from the tournament for the Memorial Wall Fish Fry Fund-raiser,” Butler added.

KAISC, contact Butler or one of the officers: Roy Howard, president; Jim Landgraff, vice president or Robert DeJoie, treasurer. Membership runs annually beginning in January. Members joining the club from mid year, after July 1, pay a reduced rate. Applications are available on the KAISC Web site.

“Our goal over the upcoming year is to continue to become more involved with sponsoring more community events and activities, both fishing and boating related,” Butler said.

her eager to live in other remote locations.

Barnett came to Kwajalein from Tallahassee, Florida and said "I've only worked on the mainland, but it seems to me that Kwaj is your typical U.S. small town, with the exception that it is a 5 hour flight, rather than an hour drive to your nearest Wal-Mart."

Barnett plans on moving on within the next year or two. Her plans are fluid. "I originally said [I'd stay] only a year, then I found about annual leaves, so I said 15 months, now it's 2 years and I'm taking my annual in July. So at least six more months, probably longer! Definitely not more than two more years," she added.

She described the new experiences she's had out while on Kwajalein as the island's best selling point. "As a firefighter in the states, I never had to worry about missiles or rocket propellants or UXO [unexploded ordnances]. I didn't know anything about Marshalese or other Micronesian cultures. I didn't know anything about airport firefighting until I came out here. And there are so many people from such rich and diverse backgrounds. Because this is such a small place, the opportunity to learn about new things presents itself much more frequently than back home. I love learning and I am always learning something new out here, even if it is something little like which store ships the fastest!"

Barnett identified a down side to island life, "Seriously, the pettiness and nit picking of some people. There aren't any major issues to deal with, so people blow little things out of proportion. That really annoys me.

Look outside people! It's the Pacific Ocean! You live on a tropical island! Chill out!! There is nothing out here that can't be solved with a few calm heads and a little cool logic."

Neil Dye has been on Kwajalein for 19 years and has no plans to move back to Idaho, his home state.

"I found out about this place from a fellow student at Idaho State University. When you're graduating, you send your resume all over the place and hope you get work anywhere. Well, that student got the job I wanted in Wyoming and I got his here," Dye said.

He works in communications now, but started off in Optics. "Then I was working at the Calibration Lab. I worked with GPS Ground Transmitters after that. When funding for the GPS GT project went away,

I worked in Telemetry for a couple of years. When an opening came up in Communications that I was interested in, I transferred and that's where I'm at now," he said. Dye also spends many of his evenings in social settings as one of the island's vendor disk jockeys. He likes living on Kwajalein for many reasons. "I've continued working on Kwajalein because I enjoy the laid-back work environment and the importance of the work we do here," he said. "The best thing about living on Kwajalein is the people. You will meet great people from all over that you normally wouldn't get to associate with in a small community." Dye recognized that Kwajalein isn't a paradise, but said the biggest detractor is the remoteness, "and not being able to just jump in your car and go somewhere."

Getting Marshall Islands driver's license requires perseverance, some walking, a little money

By Elizabeth Davie
Reporter

Are you planning to drive on one of the other islands in the atoll? Or do you just want a cool souvenir?

For a trip to Ebeye, a little bit of walking and a few dollars anyone can get a Republic of the Marshall Islands' driver's license.

What exact use this has other than driving on other islands I am not sure, but I have heard rumors that you can rent a car with it. Some people say you can; some people say you can't. Wasn't able to nail this one down. And it is just plain cool to have, I think.

How do you get one? Well, that is kind of a hard question to answer. There doesn't seem to be a set time or day but I do have some guidelines, as I made two trips to get mine.

I would say the best chance at being successful is if you go between Tuesday and Friday and try to avoid lunch time.

First you must travel to the police station, not far from the dock, to fill out an application. These applications require personal information such as name, address, date of birth, height, weight and social security number.

After filling out the application an officer will give you a bill that needs to be brought to the Ministry of Finance. This building is on the other end of the island; thus where the 'walk' comes in.

After paying the fee, head back to the police station; yes, place you were just at and get your photo taken. There will be another fee for the photo as well as the lamination. But you pay this at the police department.

Once you have paid these two fees, your license will be made and given to you and you're done, except for walking back to the dock.

Seems like a strange process, but it works.

The party progressed to Emon Beach for the YYWC Texas-style barbecue. Cow Poke Bud Teague, and his side kick, Gary Duff, handled the beef, while the Cow Gals of the YYWC Hospitality Committee doled out beans, brownies and beer. COL Beverly Stipe, U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll commander, moseyed on by to give a big Texas-style howdy! The Jinetiptip Club got the crowd rocking to its version of a Marshallese Western Swing step.

Sunday the ladies visited the Religious Education Building, where the Christian Women's Fellowship joined the festivities and hosted a luncheon. Craft demos followed with Donna Howell weaving baskets, Karla Long made Christmas trees out of golf balls and baby food jars, Trina Tiffany created shell candles and Lindborg passed along some of her treasured baking secrets.

The highlight of the weekend was the Mexican Fiesta Dinner at the Yokwe Yuk Club where Lee Craker and the KRS catering staff wowed us with their festive buffet. Skirts went flying as the YYWC Mexican Hat Dance Troupe took to the floor. Salsa dancing continued 'til the lights went up at Gilligan's, thanks to D.J. Phil Corbin.

Monday, the ladies shopped 'til they dropped, or at least until they had to board the plane. Some chose a quieter route and toured the Marshallese Cultural Center with host Lindborg, while others just relaxed in the REB talking bwe bwe nada (crazy talk) with their new-found Kwaj sisters.

Maggie Peter, Majro Japta president, and Carmen Bigler, WUTMI president, thank the ladies of the YYWC, Jinetiptip Club and CWF; and the Kwajalein community.

The Island, Blockbuster action director Michael Bay delivers a striking look at a strange world of the future in this sci-fi action drama. Midway through the 21st century, Lincoln Six Echo (Ewan McGregor) lives in a confined indoor community after ongoing abuse of the Earth has rendered most of the planet uninhabitable. One of the only places in the outside world still capable of sustaining life is an idyllic island where citizens are chosen to live through a lottery. Or at least that's what Lincoln and his fellow citizens are taught to believe; the truth is that Lincoln, like everyone he knows, is actually a clone who is kept under wraps to provide needed organs when the person who supplied his or her DNA falls ill. When he becomes aware that his existence is a fraud, Lincoln escapes to the outside world with a fellow clone, Jordan Two Delta (Scarlett Johansson), though the powers that be are determined to see that no one gets away alive.

Glory Road, A true-life story of a basketball team who broke down barriers while racking up victories is the basis for this sports drama. Don Haskins (Josh Lucas) was a high school and college basketball star who, after six years of working with high school teams, became the head coach at Texas Western University in 1962. At that time, Texas Western's basketball program was not well respected, but Haskins was determined to change that, and in 1966 Haskins assembled what he was certain was a winning team. However, Haskins' team was comprised entirely of African-American athletes at a time when racially integrated teams were still a novelty in the South and West. Despite generating a firestorm of controversy, Haskins and his players showed they could succeed where it counted — on the court. In post-season play Haskins and the Texas Western team found themselves competing for the NCAA championship against the University of Kentucky's all-white team, lead by legendary coach Adolph Rupp (Jon Voight).

Swim team sending 12 members to compete

By Cris Lindborg
Secretary Marshall Islands
Swimming Federation

Saipan, Commonwealth of the Northern Marianas will be the setting for the 2006 Micronesian Games from June 23 to July 3.

The multi-sport competition usually hosts more than 2,000 athletes from all over Micronesia in 10 days of competition. The Micronesian Games are organized every four years for the small islands and territories of the Northern Pacific such as Guam, Northern Marianas, Marshall Islands, Nauru, Palau, Pohnpei, Yap, Chuuk and Kosrae.

The games feature traditional events such as track and field, swimming and basketball, but also some of the more unique events in sports including a spearfishing contest, coconut tree climbing, coconut husking and a 'Micronesian all around' which combines these last three events.

Since 1990, the Marshall Islands Swim Team has been composed of Kwajalein Swim Team members. Once again this year, a selection of swimmers will represent the Marshall Islands at the Micronesian Games. The selection of six boys and six girls is the largest team yet to compete at these games. The team was selected based on the requirement for non-native Marshallese to have a minimum of 7 years residency in the Republic of the Marshall Islands, as well as their fastest qualifying times in at least two events in the past season. The team will be coached by Sarah Stepchew and Judy Kirchner.

In the past games, Kwajalein swimmers have brought about half the medal count for the Marshall Islands, as well as two of the best all around athletes: Cindy Friesz in 1990 and Andrea Lindborg in 1994.

Swimmers have started special workouts and will train everyday once the swim team season is over in mid April.
